

Article - Estates and Trusts

[\[Previous\]](#)[\[Next\]](#)

§3–301.

(a) A will may not be revoked by the subsequent birth, adoption, or legitimation of a child by the testator except under the circumstances referred to in § 4–105(3) of this article.

(b) A child described in subsection (a) of this section or issue, if any, of such child who does not survive the testator, is entitled to a share in the estate to be determined and paid in accordance with §§ 3–302 and 3–303 of this subtitle, if:

(1) The will contains a legacy for a child of the testator but makes no provision for a person who becomes a child of the testator subsequent to the execution of the will;

(2) The child was born, adopted, or legitimated after the execution of the will;

(3) The child, or the child's issue, survive the testator; and

(4) The will does not expressly state that the child, or the child's issue, should be omitted.

[\[Previous\]](#)[\[Next\]](#)